

The 90-Day Prosperity Experiment

Day 4: Inherent Good by Kate Nowak

Hello from my heart to yours!

Though there are certainly those who, because of their own personal mindset, would argue the point, the truth is that we live in a beneficial universe. The good inherent in everything is far greater and more powerful than any faults we might perceive. And when we choose to recognize that good is present, even in those times when it cannot be readily seen, the imperfections dissolve.

Think for a moment about waking up in a windowless and totally darkened room. You know that somewhere in the room is a light switch and though you cannot see it, you grope in the dark, feeling along the walls until, at last, your hand touches the switch.

You also cannot see the current of electricity that will flow the moment you flip the switch, but based on past experience, you know it is there. Without hesitation, you flip on the power and breathe a sigh of relief as light floods the room. Darkness is instantly dissolved.

The same thing happens when we choose to bless the people and circumstances around us. Just as light chases the darkness away when we allow the flow of electricity, so does the goodness inherent in the situation flow in to overtake our limited perceptions of evil.

As we start applying blessing to everyone and everything, we allow this greater truth of universal goodness to flood into every aspect of our lives, immediately placing both mind and soul into conscious contact with the Divine. As a consequence, the good increases and the faults we thought we saw begin to dissolve away.

The more we bless, the greater the current of inherent good that begins to flow, spilling light into every corner previously darkened by our perception. Every perceived ill and failure is overtaken, every limitation lifted and every condition improved. Through our blessing, we assume power. And when we feel more powerful than whatever perceived malady is before us, the malady, like darkness met by light, has no choice but to disappear.

For those of us who choose to walk the Blessing Way Path to Prosperity, it is imperative that we remind ourselves often that good is present even when we cannot see it. We need see every obstacle in the path as nothing more than a stepping stone, and understand that every external condition, no matter how permanent and impossible it might seem, can and will be changed for the better, provided we beckon the all-powerful good within. To bless is to beckon the good to come forth.

Today's Action Step:

1. Flip on the light. Today, no matter what takes place, no matter what conditions you encounter, no matter how scary or foreboding anything or anyone may appear, let the light of a blessing flow into the situation. Allow yourself to recognize that even though you may not immediately see it, good is still present.

2. Continue to bless those you chose in a previous Action Step.

Today's Quote:

"To live in constant spiritual touch with the great good that exists in everybody is to open the mind to strength and happiness that cannot be measured. "

Today's Affirmation:

"I am always willing to see the good inherent in everything and everyone."
